

NOW HIRING

DIRECTOR

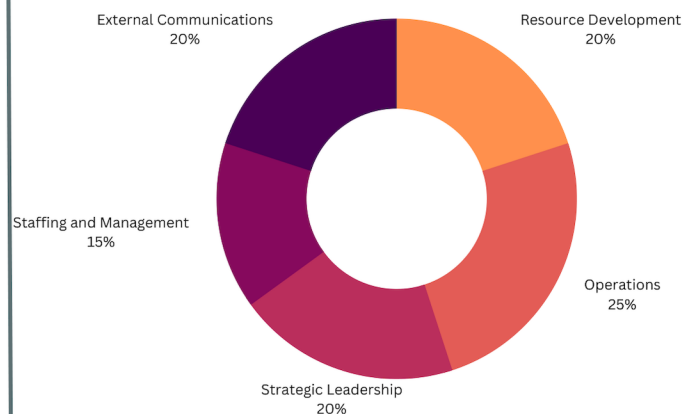

THE HELIS FOUNDATION
JOHN SCOTT CENTER

THE CENTER

The Helis Foundation John Scott Center (THFJSC) is a cultural and community art space in the city of New Orleans dedicated to the life, work, and legacy of Southern artist John T. Scott. The 6,000-square-foot space holds a significant body of Scott's work and is designed for local residents and visitors to engage with one another around humanities, history, art, and contemporary life.

The Current Landscape: With a grand opening in late 2022, the center is still in the startup phase of its organizational life cycle. The next Director will be charged with designing and implementing a five-year vision for the John Scott Center. In addition to building out the internal operations of THFJSC, the next leader will activate THFJSC through the design and implementation of dynamic public programs.

A WEEK IN THE LIFE

THE ROLE

The Director is a member of the LEH leadership team responsible for planning and executing all public programs tied to THFJSC. The Director will work with artists, culture bearers, educators, and scholars in order to launch programs rooted in the life and legacy of John T. Scott, the African Diaspora, and contemporary life in New Orleans. The Director will establish the center as a cultural and educational destination in the city of New Orleans alongside center staff. The Director will be a dynamic and visionary leader who can articulate the significance of Scott's work and the center's vision and goals to diverse stakeholders, funders, and community partners.

More Details

Where: New Orleans, LA

Start Date: January 2024

Salary: $92K to $96k + Benefits

Who Should Apply

Museum Educators, Executive Directors of Art and Cultural Spaces, Public Art Programming and Engagement Leaders, Organizational leaders with a background/interest in small-sized startups

How To Apply

Interested candidates should read the FAQ document & apply by November 4th, 2023.

Know someone who might be a great fit? Nominate a candidate by sending an email to info@studioreciprocity.com